NATIONAL HEAD-QUARTERS

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

Office of the Adjutant-General.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 1, 1886.

DEAR SIR:

The Illinois Central R. R. Co. being the first to tender the courtesies of their line to the Commander-in-Chief and Staff for the 21st National Encampment, at St. Louis, in 1887, I am directed to say the proffer is accepted, with thanks.

Respectfully,

E. B. GRAY,
Adj't-Gen'l.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY,

General Passenger Department.

CHICAGO, ILL., Feb. 14, 1887.

Comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic :

More than a quarter of a century has passed since the first shot was fired on "Sumter." The report of that shot thrilled the Nation. Ten millions of people were startled as never before.

A call for volunteers to defend the Stars and Stripes was made. You responded, leaving farm and workshop, office and store, home and loved ones, to protect and defend the Nation's honor. Battles were lost and won.

Comrades who at morn answered "here," at eventide could never more respond.

Long and weary marches, battles fierce and bloody marked the years from 1861 to 1865.

After the most gallant fight the world ever beheld, with the grandest record in history you turned your faces homeward. Your valor and courage, your common sacrifice for country, home, and God cemented you as comrades in the indissoluble bonds of "Fraternity," "Charity," and "Loyalty."

The Grand Army of the Republic was instituted to perpetuate the remembrance of sacrifices for your country and the honor of the Nation.

At these annual encampments you have gathered for twenty years and recounted the anecdotes, incidents, and events of the War.

The twenty-first annual gathering is at hand, and next September, at St. Louis, you will again grasp the friendly hand of comrades whom you have not met since perchance on picket duty long years ago. This meeting is especially accessible to Western comrades and will be, doubtless, the largest gathering of its kind the world has ever seen.

The Illinois Central Railroad having been selected by your Commander-in-Chief as the route to be used by him and his staff from Chicago to St. Louis, may appropriately be designated the "National Route to the National Encampment," and we call your attention and solicit your favor and patronage to this, in every respect, first-class route to St. Louis and the grand encampment.

This book furnishes a splendid portrait of your Commander-in-Chief, General Fairchild; a complete and official record of the engagements from 1861 to 1865, and a plat of St. Louis, locating its parks and principal points of interest, encampment, headquarters, etc. It is dedicated to you with the hope that you will find it worthy of a place in your library, to be handed down to your children, with the name and date of the engagements in which you participated, underscored with indelible ink.

Presented with the compliments of the

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD,

"The National Route to the Grand Encampment."

Respectfully,

A. H. Hanson

General Passenger Agent.

Members of the Womans Relief Corps:

From 1861 to 1865, while loyal and patriotic men were sacrificing health, home, and happiness in defense of their country, the loyal women with loving thoughts and words were cheering and inspiring sons, lovers, and husbands in the ranks, and with unwearied hands preparing useful and necessary articles for field and hospital use. Many of you were among the number, and as you gathered about the family fireside and thought of the absent ones, their hardships and danger, and the uncertainty of their safe return, your sufferings were not less real and bitter than theirs.

The same spirit of constancy that characterized you during those dark days now manifests itself in care for the soldiers' widows and orphans, and this little book will reach none more interested in locating certain memorable engagements than the members of the "Womans Relief Corps."

The Illinois Central Railroad, appreciative of your share in the sorrows of war, congratulates you on being partakers of the joys of peace, and trusts when the bugle call is sounded for the St. Louis National encampment, the members of the "Womans Relief Corps" will honor with their presence the route which has been selected by the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic for himself and staff en route Chicago to St. Louis and return.

Very respectfully,

A. H. Hanson

Gen'l Pass'r Agent.

ST. LOUIS.

---

Nearly a century and a quarter ago Pierre Laclede established a trading post upon the site of the present City of St. Louis, camping on or near the spot occupied by Barnum's Hotel.

It was late in the fall of 1763 that Laclede came up the river from New Orleans, representing the Louisiana Fur Company, which had received its grant from the Director-General of Louisiana the previous year. The post was located February 15, 1764. The town was named in honor of Louis XV., the then reigning monarch of France, who claimed ownership of the immense territory then known as Louisiana. Spain, however, asserted her claims and took possession of St. Louis, and the territory of Louisiana, Aug. 11, 1768, but relinquished in favor of France in 1803, and in the same year ceded the territory to the United States. At this time there were one hundred and eighty houses, two rude hotels or taverns, two mills and a bakery in the embryo city. In 1808 the first newspaper appeared (The Missouri Gazette, now the Republican). In 1809 it was incorporated as a town, and as a city in 1822. The first steamboat arrived in 1815, and the first railroad in 1851. To-day the city comprises an area of about 60,000 acres, extending along the banks of the mighty "Father of Waters" for over twenty miles, with a breadth of about seven miles, and has a population of nearly half a million of people.

The city is built on a series of terraces or ridges high above the surface of the river, a gradual slope rising back from the river bank for about a mile, reaching an elevation of 150 feet above the water, again declining and rising until a height of 200 feet is reached, some four miles from the river, then expanding into a level plain beyond. The densely-built portion of the city is comprised in a district along the river bank about six miles north and south and extending back about three miles. The city is very regularly laid out, the streets near the river running parallel with its curve, while a short distance back they are at right-angles with the streets running west from the river.

STREET SYSTEM.

Streets running north and south, or parallel with the river, are numbered streets, as far west as Jefferson Avenue, and designated north or south, as the locality is north or south of Market Street.

Streets running west or from the river are named. One hundred numbers are allotted to each block, which, when understood by strangers, greatly facilitates their movements. For example: 316 Olive Street would be on Olive between Third and Fourth Streets, or in the fourth block from the river, commencing at Main or First Street; 509 Olive would be between Fifth and Sixth Streets; 109 North Fifth Street is in the first block north of Market; while 709 North Fifth Street would be found in the seventh block north of Market. Likewise, 312 South Third Street will be in the third block south of Market, and 2820 Pine Street will be twenty-eight blocks west from Main Street and the river front.

STREET CARS AND HACK CHARGES.

The street-car system renders all parts of the city easily accessible (5 cent fares), and cars run all night. Distances usually stated are from the court-house. The rates for hansom cabs are fixed by city ordinance, as follows: For one or two persons, each mile, twenty-five cents. Service by the hour, within the three-mile radius, as marked on the map, seventy-five cents, and one dollar for each hour beyond three miles. Such a drive as is indicated on the map by the green lines will cost about three dollars, and take about four hours' time. A carriage for four persons over the same route can be had for about four dollars. This drive leads through the principal business and residence streets, passing the various points of interest and public buildings, to and through the parks in the order named.

Starting from the court-house:

Broadway to Washington Avenue — past Mercantile Library and wholesale dry goods district.

Washington Avenue to Seventh Street — the tunnel is under this street.

THE GREAT STEEL BRIDGE OVER THE MISSISSIPPI.

This structure in its conception and successful completion is justly regarded as one of the wonders of the American Continent, and beyond any question the greatest triumph in engineering skill this nineteenth century has yet produced. It was designed by the late Capt. James B. Eads, whose genius conceived the now famous jetties at the mouth of this same river, whose shores at this point he so successfully united with this mammoth arch of steel. The work was commenced in 1869, and completed five years later. The bridge proper consists of three spans, the centre one 520 feet, and each of the others 502 feet, while the height of the centre span is fifty-five feet above high water mark. The two piers in the river are composed of granite resting upon the bed-rock, 120 feet below the surface. The approaches are over a mile in length and the tunnel under the city, from the west bank of the river to the Union Depot, is almost a mile in length.

To fully appreciate the magnitude of the structure, it should be viewed from beneath, on the levee; while a promenade across, or to the centre of the middle arch (toll 5 cents), will disclose a grandeur of view that is not to be had in any other city in the world.
